C. Public Comment

a. Items not on the Agenda

Loren Canon and Dawn Dickenson from Project Health gave background on their organization which is dedicated to establishing positive policies regarding health access and treatment to transgender people. The organization works in Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Eureka to educate the public about transgender issues. The goal in Humboldt County is to establish a county-wide policy of inclusion and, in the long term, to establish a clinic especially for transgender people. Their goal in addressing The Commission was to inform us and the residents of the county about this segment of our population and to send the message that California law prohibits discrimination based on gender identity or expression. They pointed out, however, that the Humboldt County non-discrimination policy does not make this same explicit prohibition. Miller suggested that they look into using Access Humboldt as a way of educating the public, and Heise suggested the use of the 20-minute interview program on KHSU for the same purpose. Sanders suggested the policy of asking the county to clarify its policy and suggested the Human Rights Commission as a vehicle to present a language change to The Board of Supervisors. He invited the members of Project Health to return to a meeting of The Commission with a proposal for our consideration.

b. Items on Agenda

There were none.

D. Telephone Calls, Correspondence, and E-mail Reports

a. Telephone Calls

1. Sanders reported a call reporting harassment during a sweep by the sheriff's office of homeless people in Southern Humboldt County. Sanders suggested that the complainant attend a Commission meeting to detail the complaint and request assistance. He also received two requests for resource cards and delivered some to The Open Door Clinic and The Red Cross. Finally, he responded to a caller from Indiana by referring him to a local agency.
2. Herbelin received a call from a person complaining about treatment in a county correctional facility while being dressed and placed in the facility. She was advised to wait to see if charges were placed against her and then to work through her attorney. A man who had been assaulted a year ago called to say that he had just learned that the District Attorney had rejected his case. He was advised to go to civil court. A homeless vet from Southern Humboldt called to say that law enforcement is "hunting people" in his area. He was advised to attend the July meeting of The Commission. Another man had a complaint against Garr Neilsen but had filed a complaint.
